

UNITED STATES AREAS WITH SHELTER-IN-PLACE/STAY-AT-HOME ORDERS

As of March 25, 2020

As the United States sees more positive cases of COVID-19 rise, states, cities, and tribes have been ordering shelter-in-place or stay-at-home orders. Listed below are all the areas in which these orders have been placed and what it means.

San Francisco

- Eight Bay Area counties have shelter-in-place orders in place, including Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, and Sonoma as well as the City of Berkeley. Napa County has announced orders that go into effect Friday. The orders are currently effective until April 7.
- Public Health Orders require people to stay home except for essential needs, which are defined as:
  - Buy food, groceries, or supplies
  - Obtain medical care
  - Work at a business that's deemed essential
  - Maintain an essential government function
  - Care for a family member or pet in another household
- Individuals may engage in outdoor activities, such as walking, biking or running, as long as you stay at least six feet away from other people.
- There are still many businesses deemed "essential" that remain open, although some with reduced hours. These include:
  - Hospitals and health care operations
  - Pharmacies
  - Grocery stores, farmers markets, food banks
  - Restaurants and other facilities that prepare and serve food, but only for delivery or carry out
  - Airlines, taxis and ride-hailing services like Lyft and Uber (although no share/pool rides)
  - Gas stations
  - Banks
  - News media
  - Hardware stores
  - Mailing, shipping and delivery services
  - Agriculture and food cultivation
  - Other services including plumbers, electricians, exterminators, laundry and legal services
  - Schools and colleges, although many public school districts have already canceled in-person instruction
  - Child care facilities, under certain conditions
  - Residential facilities and shelters for seniors, adults, and children, hotels, motels
  - Home-based care for seniors, adults or children
  - Cannabis dispensaries

- At this time, enforcement is on a voluntary basis, but the SF Mayor and Police Chief have threatened stricter enforcement if residents fail to comply.
- If your place of employment is not an essential business, the current shelter-in-place orders require that the business or facility shut down. Employees are allowed to perform “minimum basic operations,” as long as they maintain a distance of six feet from one another. Minimum basic operations include maintaining the value of inventory, ensuring security and ensuring employees can work remotely. Other than to maintain minimum basic operations, employees can only work remotely from their residences, according to the order. Put simply, if your work is not an essential business, you are not permitted to go to work and your employer is not permitted to require you to attend except to sustain minimum basic operations.
